

The Newman, for many years the main publication of the Newman Association, contains articles of a scholarly nature as part of the Association's overall ministry, to support and encourage Christian faith in contemporary society, The Newman seeks to publish a broad range of material that might not otherwise be made available. This includes articles on spirituality, pastoral care, liturgy and the Eucharist; on ecumenism and aspects of Christian history; on medicine, ethical issues and those connected with the environment.

The principal papers from conferences organised by the Association are usually published solely in The Newman. Book reviews appear regularly and also an occasional article on the arts.

While all members of the Association receive the journal, it also has a wider circulation that includes university chaplaincies, the Catholic bishops in the UK and a complimentary list of overseas readers.

Where permission is granted by the author, some of the published articles are now accessible via this site. The Contents Summary below has a link to these articles. Articles can also be accessed via the Article Search web page.
